

HEATHER SUTHERLAND WADE: Hues of Jamaica

Heather Sutherland Wade: Hues of Jamaica explores two decades of artistic evolution, while capturing the essence of Jamaica. Celebrating the sense of peace that Sutherland Wade continues to evoke within her paintings, this momentous show brings together an array of subjects, ranging from sweeping landscapes and tranquil seascapes, to vibrant flora and charming townscapes. Sutherland Wade's characteristic style can be seen in each piece, through her distinctive and unapologetic use of colour, composition, shape and texture. With pieces conceived exclusively for the exhibition, Hues of Jamaica pays homage to the artist's mastery, while sprouting new narratives on growth and the beauty of nature and life.

Curated by Emma Miles

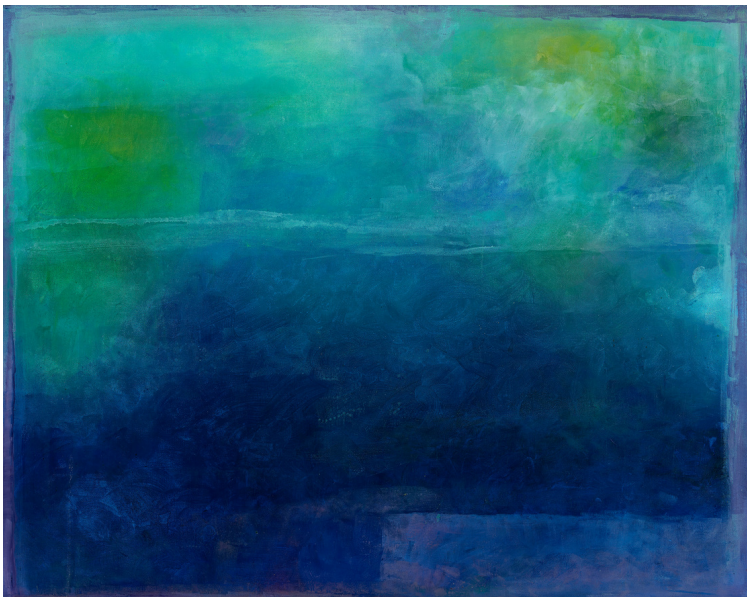

“I wish to convey the beauty of what I see around me and the peace that it creates for me. The beauty that captures my attention, it always seems to be in a place where it’s peaceful.”

Heather Sutherland Wade (Mandeville, Manchester, Jamaica, 1948) is a fine artist and graphic designer whose practice explores the beauty of the world around her. Using painting as an avenue to express what she perceives visually, portraying a sense of peace is essential in her work.

Sutherland Wade's career in fine arts began when she was awarded a four year scholarship to study Advertising Art at the Alberta College of Art in Canada. It was during this time that she discovered painting, and developed her distinctive style, which she describes as "impressionistic, but somewhat abstract." Characterised by large patches of colour and simplified forms, Sutherland Wade's style has explored an expansive range of subjects and themes from landscapes and seascapes, to flora, townscapes and houses.

Shortly after returning to Jamaica in 1970, Sutherland Wade debuted her work at the Bolivar Gallery in Kingston, where all 26 of her paintings on display were sold. During her career, Sutherland Wade has exhibited both locally and internationally, in events across Jamaica, the Caribbean, the United States, Canada, China, Mexico and Italy; in numerous museums and galleries, including the National Gallery of Jamaica, the Queens Park National Gallery, the Bolivar Gallery, and IDB Cultural Centre.
